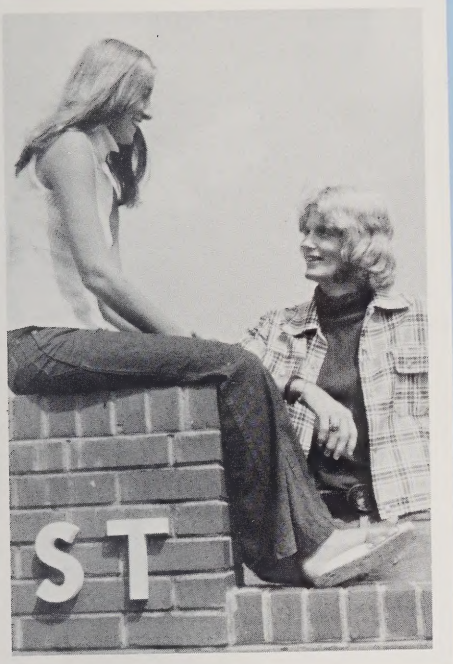
FRIENDS



Sharing our time with friends, we build lasting memories. Whether we're studying, eating, using the phone, or just chatting, friends bring out the sunshine

Inspired by school spirit and good sportsmanship, each team member in green, white, and gold is a credit to Dragon pride

Our classwork is not always done sitting at a desk. Horticulture is taught in a flower bed; Home Ec., in the kitchen; drama, on stage; research, in the library; and reading outside or almost anywhere — which makes for an interesting day

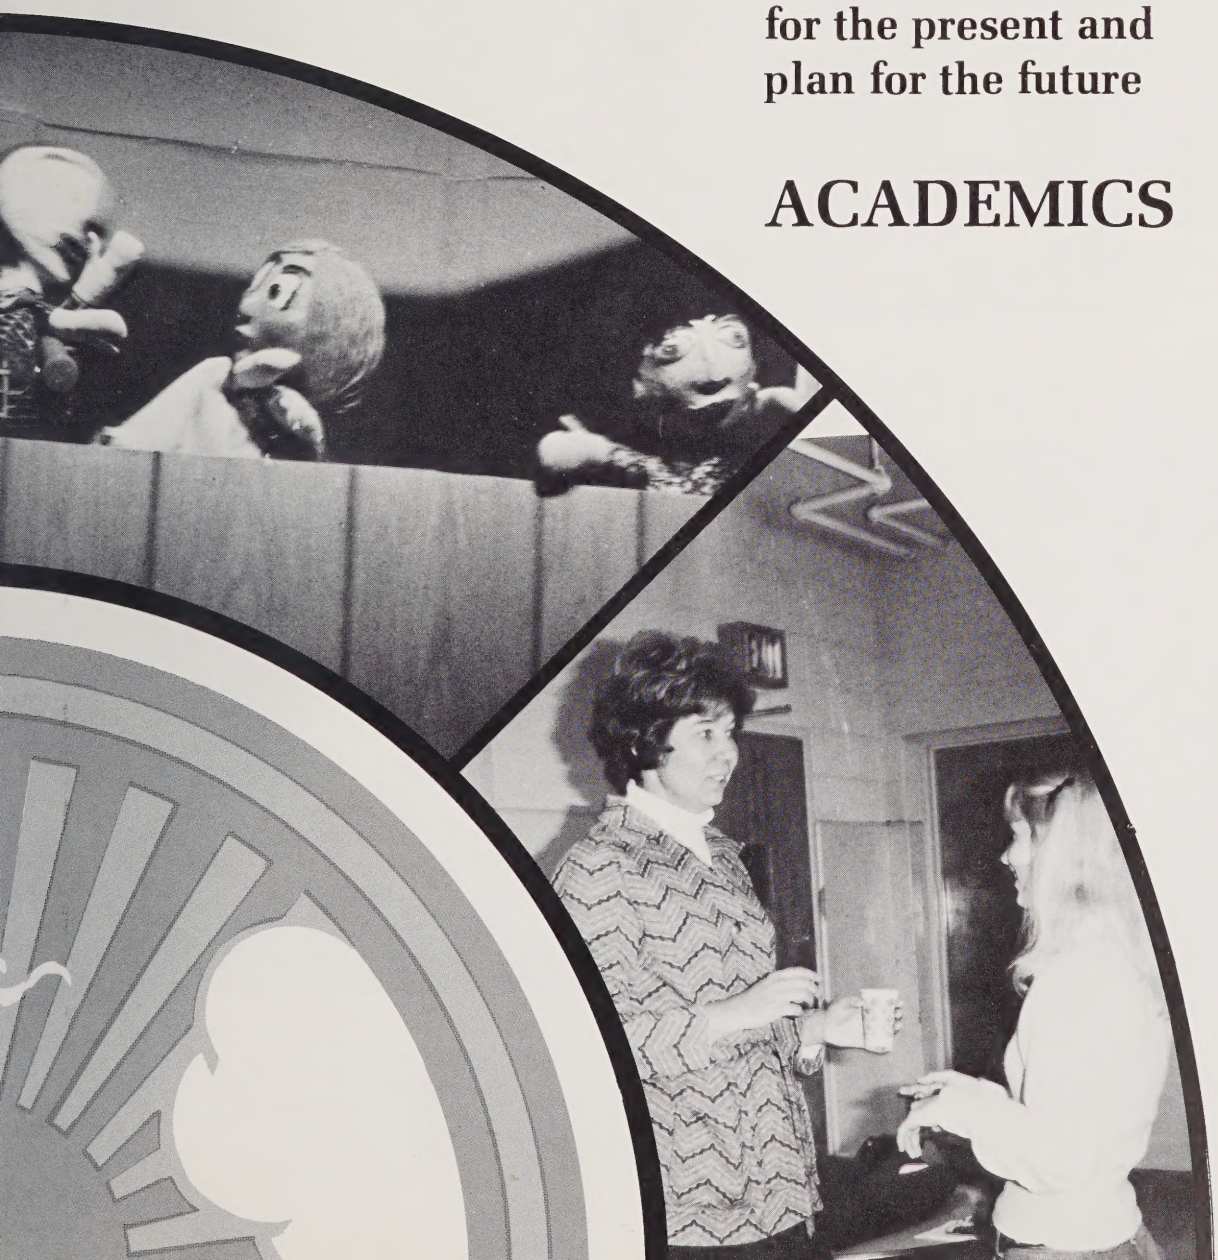
Hello, Sunshine!

Occupational tools, new texts, movies, and extra reading materials add variety to our academics. Friendship with and respect for teachers enable us to learn for the present and plan for the future

ACADEMICS



School, organization concern administrators

New West Davidson was in the planning: the site selected, construction plans drawn up, and the faculty ideas submitted for the architectural lay-out of the classrooms. Reorganization of the elementary schools also concerned the administrative board. Teachers of all subjects emphasized importance of reading skills in the classrooms.

'You are what you eat'; comfortable buildings assist, too!

Colorful new tables, chairs, and art posters helped everyone enjoy meals. With weekly posted menus, little time was lost each day by students in forming a lunch line.

Maintaining comfortable, sanitary buildings and grounds was the duty of the custodian, Mr. Ed Hardin, and the maid, Mrs. Veronia Hairston.

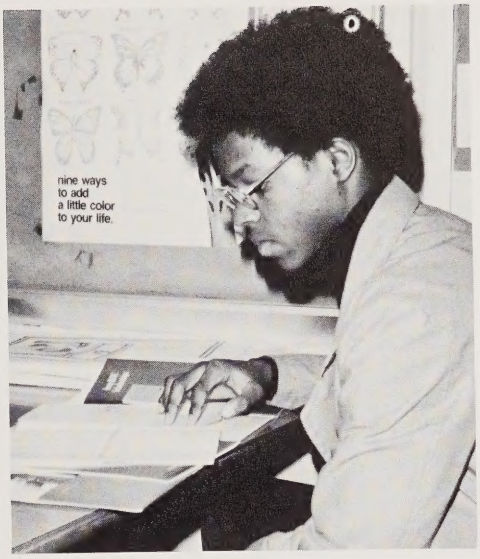
OPPOSITE, TOP: Guest entertainer, Dale Griggs, and Mr. A.L. Parker enjoy Mr. Ed Hardin's music at an assembly program.
RIGHT: Ingemar LeGrand uses guidance materials.
BOTTOM: Mrs. Jessie Ingram answers questions for Pam Tucker and Theresa Swicegood.



Futures planned with 'Mama'

Always ready to listen, 'Mama Ingram' helped students with personal problems, school troubles, and future plans. Informative bulletin boards, up-to-date college catalogues, career pamphlets, and a rack of Guidance Series Booklets were available to those who needed specific information. Many future plans originated in our Guidance Room.

Same English — varied methods

To create interest, word games and paperback books were popular. Classes met outside to get a different perspective in writing.

New classwork center; media class instituted

New to the English curriculum were a mass media course and a consultant from the State Department in speech and drama. Through field trips and projects, classwork centered around skills to help the students help themselves. Student librarians earned credit for assisting in the school media center.

Math stresses practical basics

Emphasis was placed on basic fundamentals of practical math. Math I and II classes were filled. Algebra I was for freshmen; Algebra II, for more advanced students.

ABOVE: Rocky Tysinger, Pam Voyles, and Fairye Greene measure vectors in Mr. Ray Midgett's physics class.

Animals used for instruction

Through observation, experiments, and dissection of animals, the science classes learned more about the world around them. To study what interested them, students had a selection consisting of: physical science, biology, physics, chemistry, and advanced science for eager seniors with strong stomachs.

TOP LEFT: Donna Barnhardt adjusts the mirror of the microscope to get a clear view of organisms; Leila Shepherd waits to study the slide.
BOTTOM: Steven Forrest, Ken Dorsett, Stephen Craver work on slides in advanced science.

Holiday season, typing subject

Basic typing skills led to the preparation of special holiday season booklets in office practice class and in shorthand. Bookkeeping experience included the writing of checks and invoices, doing practice sets, and operating different office machines.

Added course, 'Family Living', for boys, girls

Girls learned ways of preparing meals, choosing patterns, and sewing.

Added to the department were a micro-wave oven and a new gas range. New in the curriculum was a mixed class in family living for girls and boys.

At Christmas, classes made handicraft items, which they put on exhibit, and held a reception.

Students paid for learning about industry

In textiles, beginning students studied an introduction to the industry. They received on-the-job training with pay their senior year. Daily job reports were made about the type of work, training received, and hours employed. When economy became bad, young men looked for jobs for the unemployed.

Autumn brings new landscape

On Autumn days agriculture students landscaped the school lawn, putting in shrubbery. In freshman agriculture, Introduction to Vo Ag and parliamentary procedure were studied. Sophomores worked with Ag. Science Mechanics, and Livestock Production. Horticulture and planning home grounds kept juniors busy. Seniors did Construction work in shop.

TOP: Eddie Coughenour and Eddie Michael clean around the shrubbery on the front lawn.
CENTER: Freshmen inspect the drill press.
BOTTOM: Mr. Nelson Helms demonstrates the jointer to his Ag. I class group.

Job training, new course

Industrial career training courses were new additions to the school curriculum. Freshmen took IIE; Juniors and Seniors, ICT. School credit was earned in the classroom and on-the-job.

Sixteen — year of the driver

Approaching their sixteenth birthday, students were eager to learn about the car in driver education. They were glad to stay after school for the classwork. Instructor, Mr. Kenneth Sink, stressed the importance of all the new traffic laws.
Students interested in having their bus license took additional training.

TOP: Mr. Kenneth Sink instructs Tony Spry, Cindy Bennett, and Karen Wood.
BOTTOM: Michael Swicegood, Mark Leonard, and Terry Bailey examine bus tires with Mr. Harry Lemons, instructor.

France comes alive at West

French tapes were used to help beginners. Mrs. Ellen Miller showed to her classes slides of French life she had seen in France. French III was reinstated for seniors.

TOP: Debbie Rogers, Jeanie Owens, Patsy Potts. Gloria Cooper, and Debbie Cook learn new words with French scrabble.
RIGHT: French I students work on a written test.
BOTTOM: Gina Myers, Vicki Voyles, and Mitzi Simerson receive help in French review from Mrs. Ellen Miller.
OPPOSITE, TOP: Linda Hanes and Tammy Cleary sing at an assembly program.
CENTER: Tammy Forrest, Jeanene Ogburn, Sharon Jones, and Tina Koonts rehearse in band class.
BOTTOM: Chorus students practice with Mr. Jones.

Chorus, band go modern

Chorus and band members related to themselves and other students through the variety of modern music they used at football games, assemblies, parades, and a Spring concert. They enjoyed being on programs together.

Classtime found them busy learning new numbers and rehearsing programs.

P.E. uses new rules in sports

P.E. students learned new rules in old sports, such as football, basketball, and softball; and used new rules in new sports, such as soccer and badminton. Physical fitness was stressed in daily work.

Zealous staff provides paper

Few in number, the 'Dragonette' staff was enthusiastic in producing the student newspaper. Mr. Kent Crim advised them in writing stories, proofreading, and mimeographing monthly editions of school news.

Ink, charcoal display talents

In art, sketches were done in ink, charcoals, and pastels. Talent was exhibited in the school, in a library art showing, and at the Davidson County Art Guild display.

CENTER: Joanie Weaver does an oil painting.

Teamwork gets annual to press

Preparing the yearbook for press demanded a very heavy schedule for the thirteen staff members in sixth period journalism class. Each one shared all phases of activity and assignments, working together as a close team.

TOP CENTER: June Michael and Theresa Swicegood work on senior statistics.
CENTER: Kim Reudelhuber plans pictures with Bobbie Heitman and Jan Sink, members of the school photography club.

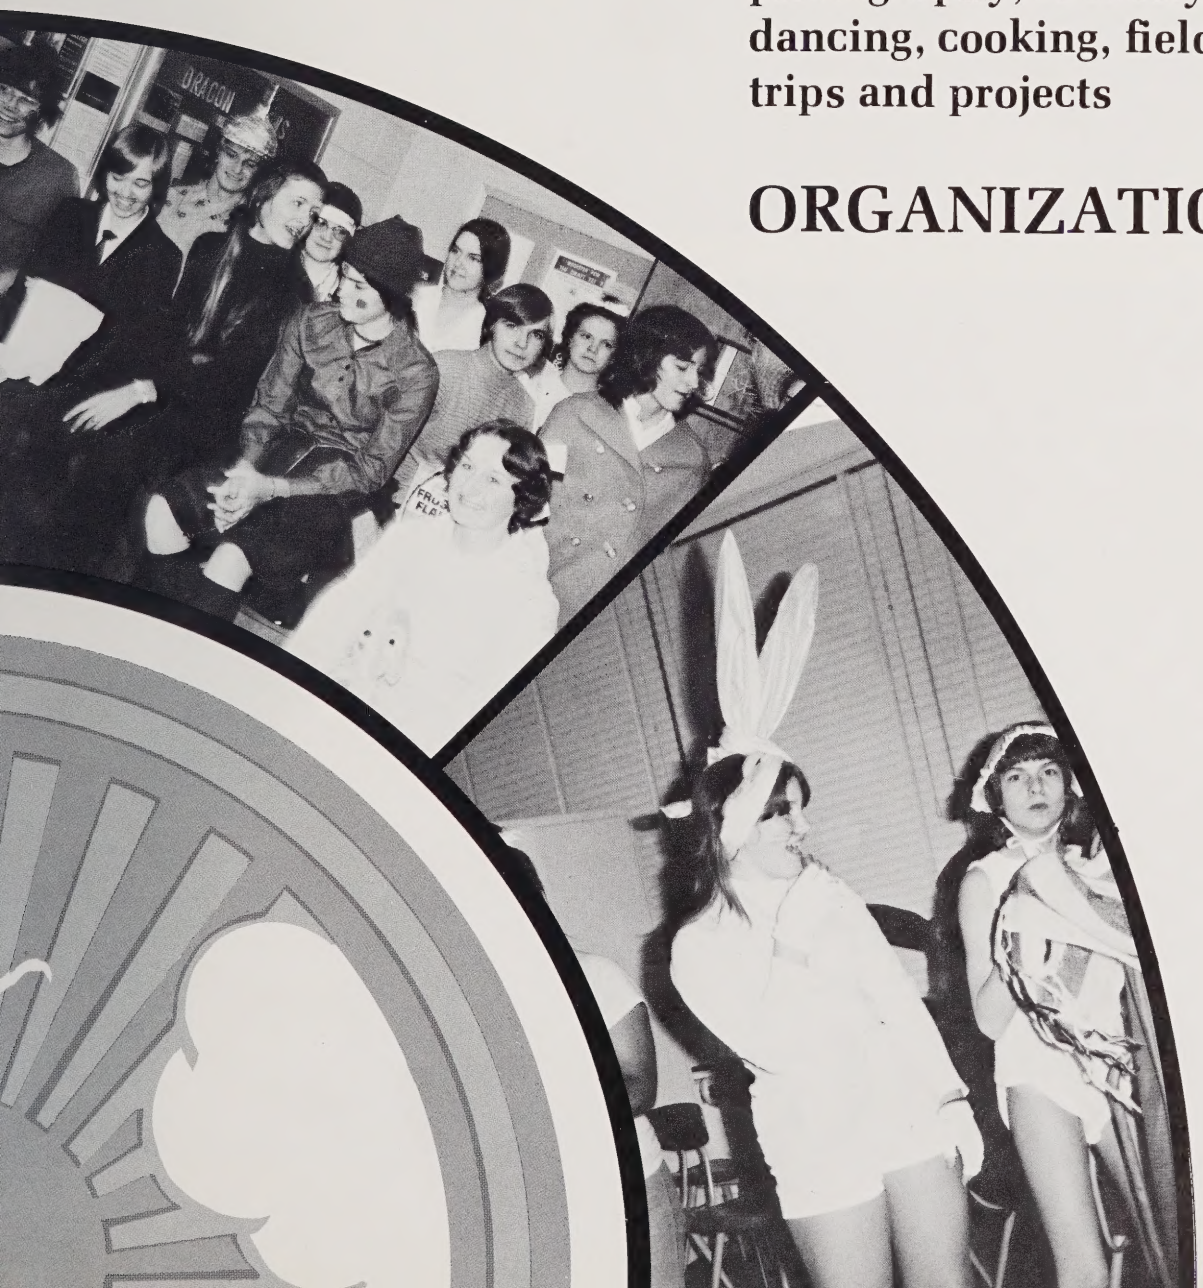
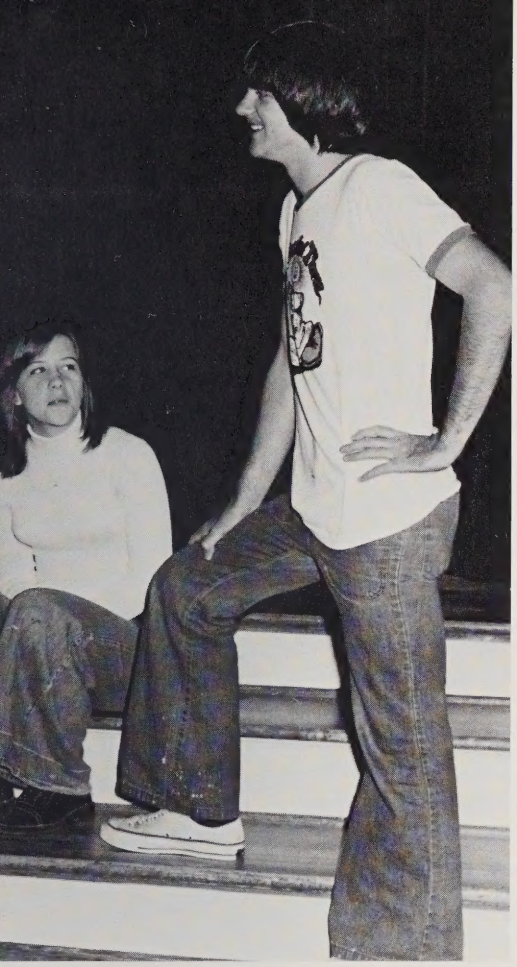
LEFT: Luke Shepherd and Sandra Smith send out bills and thank-you letters for advertising.

Hello, Sunshine!

New and old clubs — which add to school work — develop our own personal interests in outside activities — including motorcycles, photography, rocketry, dancing, cooking, field trips and projects

ORGANIZATIONS





Toboggan sale helps paint lounge

Student Council members sold toboggans; painted the gym lobby for a student lounge, put furniture in it, and provided games and music; sponsored dances; collected money and food for needy families; reviewed the student constitution.

Food purchases gas for fieldtrips; rockets launched safely

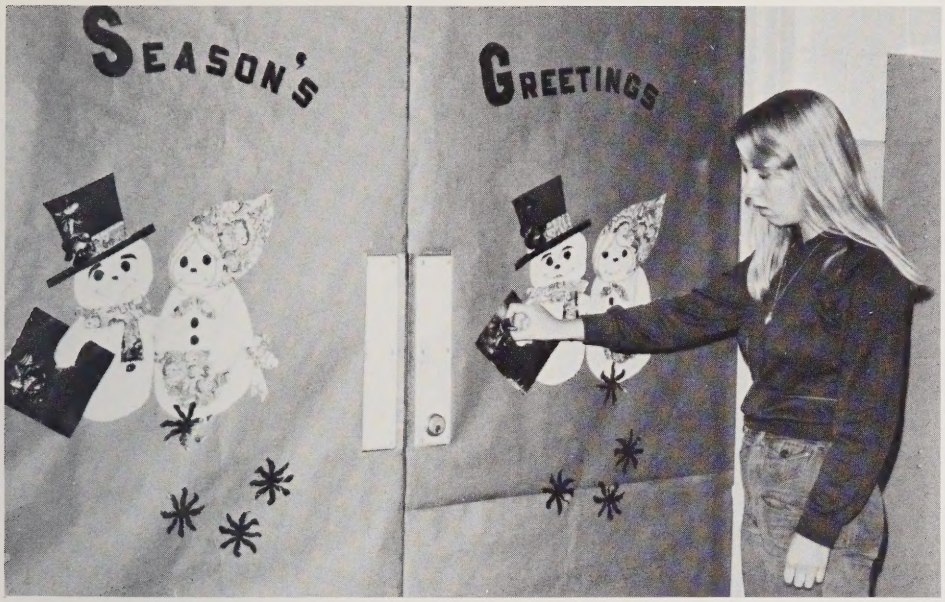
Advanced science students brought food for bake sales to purchase gas for trips relating to their Science Club projects. Launching rockets and learning heights, speed, and safety in using them was the objective of Rocket Club members.

BELOW: Mitchell Swicegood and other members of the club construct a rocket.
BOTTOM: Rocket Club members prepare for the launching of a rocket from the school grounds.
OPPOSITE, TOP: On an ecology trip in the mountains, science students relax with Mrs. Joyce Hines; Charles Byerly, Steven Forrest, Marie Fitzgerald, Betsy Barber, June Michael.
BOTTOM: Groups discuss different science projects.

Faculty aided by F.T.A. club

During Education Week, the FTA Club put up a bulletin board in the lobby, using characters from 'Peanuts.' Assisting the faculty, members studied and learned about teaching.

RIGHT: Thersa Swicegood and Pam Tucker work for Mr. Helms. BELOW: FTA Club members decorate a Christmas bulletin board in the office lobby.



Club big hit at district meeting

When the Library Club attended the district convention at North Rowan, Ane Wegwart was elected district reporter; and the club won the prize for the best identification tag, designed by Cappi Gordon.

During the year the club sold doughnuts to make library improvements.

TOP: Cappi Gordon puts the finishing touches on the library door she decorated.
BELOW: Library Club members have a monthly meeting.

Girls show community spirit

Girls in the Young Women's Club were active workers in the community and the school. At Christmas, members had fun decorating a tree in the school lobby. They visited the Junior Order Home with gifts, had a Tupperware party, studied cosmetics.

BELOW: During the club meeting, Gina Myers and Mrs. Gray assemble the Christmas tree in the lobby.

Character, scholarship, and leadership qualities were required of juniors tapped for the Beta Club. They were given a daisy and a reception — which included parents.

TOP: Carolyn Pace serves Lisa Rowe and her mother. Marianne Shoaf likes her daisies. Helen Hairston entertains her mother.

TOP RIGHT: Terri Koonts leads the new Betas in the club pledge after the tapping.

Afro-Heritage interested in future careers

Monthly meetings featured films and other interesting materials for programs. Members were especially interested in visiting college campuses and studying careers. Mr. Elbert Cabbell was sponsor.

Routes, safety emphasized to bus drivers at talk sessions

Fifteen members of the Bus Drivers Club, active with bake sales, raised money for the annual banquet held in their honor.

At meetings, complaints were discussed about their routes and reminders were given for safety. Regular drivers were given a list of substitutes to use.

Clubs on wheels — by two's, four's

West Davidson — famous for always being first — was the first school in this area to organize a Moto-Cross team and club.

There were planned trail riding parties; the team took part in races, studied care and safety of bikes, and adopted club patches to wear.

Three purposes were listed for the West Davidson Motor Club; to promote automotive safety, to organize the students for the program, and to benefit the school.

Activities included a trip to Petty Enterprises, painting numbered parking spaces, and making a hall bulletin board.

Dragons mount up, gain experience, have fun

Horse and Saddle Club members studied judging and diseases of horses; helped inexperienced riders learn correct ways of riding and saddling a horse; conducted trail rides and get-togethers. In the Spring, a small horse show was conducted for members.

BELOW: Saddle Club officers, Tanya Garwood, Lynn Wood, Cyndi Cleary, Darlene Ludwig, and Susan Shoaf, show their horses at school on picture-making day.

Green streamers signal games, stir spirit

Encouraging spirit before games, the members of the Pep Club tied green and gold streamers to the car antennas. Posters were hung in the halls to inform students of coming games. To add to the Homecoming festivities the Pep Club presented a skit and dance routine to the entire student body.

RIGHT: Susan Springer, Janet Isham, and Ellen Myers put green and gold streamers on students' cars on the day of a home football game. BOTTOM: In a club meeting, members make posters to create school spirit.

Advertising, editorial staffs create yearbook

Conscientious staff members worked under the direction of Mrs. Lucile Myers to produce the school yearbook, with Terri Koonts, editor; Bonnie Smith and Kim Reudelhuber, working as associate editors. Sandra Smith and Luke Shepherd headed the business staff supervised by Mrs. Joyce Hines. Salesmanship competition was very strong, led by Tanya Garwood and Patsy Potts; Jan Parnell and Ronda Snider. Ronda and Jan were final winners, pictured below. Staff is grouped at bottom.

Crucial games

Varsity Dragons set a season record of 5-4-1, finishing third in the conference after losing crucial games by less than a touchdown.

In the second game of the year, the varsity recorded its first win ever against North Rowan. In an emotional game with Ledford, the Dragons and the Panthers tied, but West won the tie-breaker, 24 yards to 13.

Lenny Wegwart led all rushers, with 520 yards; Barry Shoaf was leading scorer, with 42 points; Phil Foster had the most tackles, 90; and Ricky Springer led with game interceptions, 4.

Rugged action slows victories

Varsity games were full of rugged action, which resulted in injuries that slowed down the wins. But top honors rolled in for Dragon players by the end of season play:

Bill Butts, All-Conference (defensive tackle); Phil Poole, All-Conference (offensive tackle); Phil Foster, Honorable Mention All-Conference (linebacker); Barry Shoaf, All-County (linebacker) and Honorable Mention All-Conference (back, linebacker).

Conference Champions!

Coached by Mr. Bob Butts, the baby Dragons went 5-0 this year to become number 1 in the conference. Led by quarterback Jody Shoaf and the rushing of Reggie Miller, they became 5-1-1 overall. Baby Dragons defeated their arch-rival, Central 22-0, while also winning and losing to: Corriher-Lipe 0-0; China Grove 0-8; Southern Guilford 42-12; Ledford 22-12; Allen-Jay 14-8; East Davidson 1-0.

Freshmen played a very close game against Allen-Jay. At the half the team was behind 8-6. In the third quarter, on a flag play, Jody Shoaf threw a pass to Scott Yarborough who ran for the touchdown. Led by Chris Poole, the defense then took over and finally held the Jaybirds scoreless.

Rebounding, inside strength

With the return of five seniors, the varsity boys' basketball team played aggressively with a strong inside game. Each contest proved their good rebounding strength. They mixed the use of a wide open running game and discipline to control the tempo. Junior pivotman, Phil Poole, was the leading scorer and rebounder with sixteen points and ten rebounds averaged per game.

Freshmen

change to new life-style

As WDHS freshmen, 180 elementary graduates took their place on the bottom of the ladder.

Taking ribs from the upperclassmen and going wild over the drink machines occupied their breaks. But in class these new students fell into the routine of studying just like the rest of us.

Freshman class officers, Susan Forrest, vice-president; Stephen Shoaf, president; Sandy Cleary, treasurer; and Rene Poag, secretary, are grouped in the guidance room.

active in middle slot

No longer picked on as freshmen, sophomores became active members of West and its varsity teams, sharing losses and victories with the upperclassmen.

Getting a new French teacher, dissecting worms in biology, and reading science fiction stories in English were a few of the sophomore classroom activities.

In six homerooms were the 156 sophomores — middleclassmen of today, upperclassmen of tomorrow.

Sophomore class president, Bill Butts, keeps the other class officers laughing: Ane Wegwert, secretary; Leila Shepherd, treasurer; and Dale Snider, vice-president.

Juniors
move with 'The Spirit of '76'

With 125 students, the Spirit of '76 struck West. Magazine sales soared, breaking all previously set records.

Receiving classrings in October gave the juniors that upperclassmen feeling at the beginning of the year. The hard work put into the planning of the Junior-Senior Prom highlighted their life.

PSAT and SAT scores showed juniors how much they had already learned and how much they needed to learn in that last year left ahead of them at West.

Seniors share close chain of friendship

As the class of '75, we shared together the joys and sorrows of growing up. Each year we said 'hello' to freshmen and new-comers who joined our group. We said 'good-bye' to those who graduated and other friends who left us. We treasured the memories of those before us and those succeeding us.

Our colors of yellow and orange and our flower, the yellow rose, symbolized our good-byes. As a special record of remembrance we chose 'We Sang in the Sunshine' for our class song. We liked our motto:

Don't walk in front of me —
I may not follow.
Don't walk behind me —
I may not lead.
Just walk beside me
And be my friend.
— Camus

From the 156 individual freshmen, we graduated as 100 seniors. 'Love' became the word that bound us with a close chain of friendship. Our optimism was cultivated no matter where we were. We rallied forth our spirit to keep West Number One and to make the class of '75 stand out and really look alive.

Sunset, 1974-75

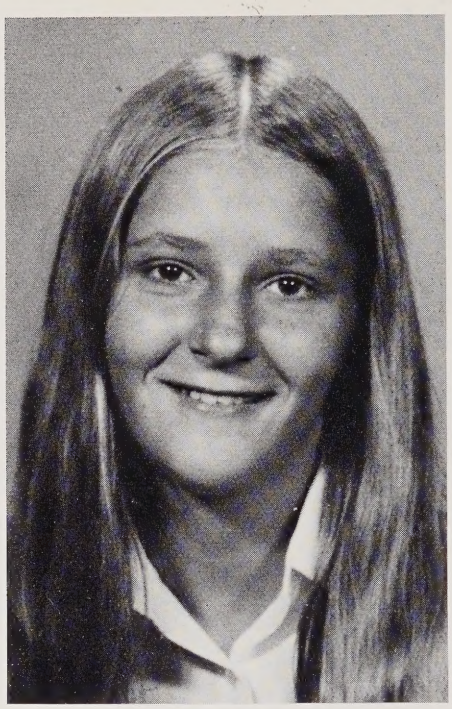
Our year is finished, complete with all the experiences that came our way. Clouds covered some of our days, but the sunshine always filtered through to brighten them.

We made friends, laughed and cried, and accepted or neglected challenges to learn. Our victories outnumbered our losses, good grades made up for the bad, and school spirit triumphed over the morning blahs. We enjoyed classes outside, were active in clubs, participated in sports, and progressed in discovering ourselves.

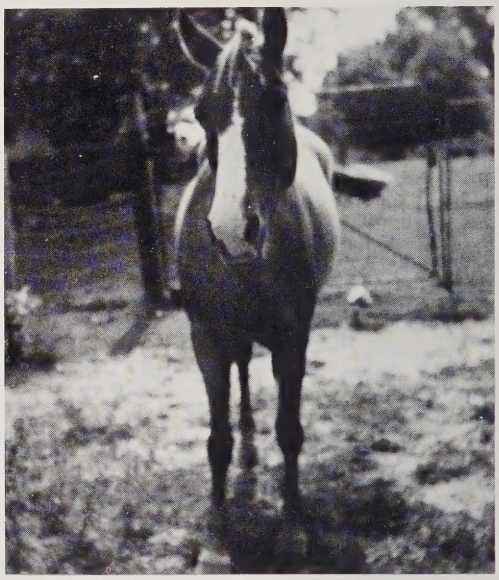
These will be the memories as the sun sets on 1974 — 1975 and rises on a future that will continue to lead us forward — a future when we can say again, 'HELLO, SUNSHINE!'

In the traditional green and white graduation cap and gown are Ken Dorsett, Ken Michael, Stephen Craver, David Rachels, Steven Forrest, Delane Essick, Jan Sink, Dawn Rodgers, Shirlene Smith.

Sophomores express love



Valli Jane Greene
1959-1974



Though friends may leave us for one reason or another, a part of them remains with us. This is the way it is with Valli. Though the physical being is gone, her laughter, her friendliness, and her love for animals and those around her will remain with us forever. Valli, we love you.
— Sophomore Class

We voice our appreciation

Through the cooperation of Mr. A.L. Parker, Principal, the faculty, and the students, many memories of 1974-1975 have been compiled into one book. We have endeavored to make our annual interesting-yet complete.

Printed by Hunter Publishing Company of Winston-Salem, MEMORIES '75 was served by Mrs. Jo Walker, lay-out consultant, and Mr. Ed Goldston, Hunter representative. Special pictures were made by Ingram's Studios.

Members of the editorial staff were Tanya Garwood, Karen McKinney, June Michael, Jan Parnell, Debbie Rogers, Luke Shepherd, Sandra Smith, Ronda Snider, Rhonda Spry, and Theresa Swicegood.

Concerned merchants were contacted by members of the editorial staff and other seniors who made up the advertising staff: Mike Brinkle, Cyndi Cleary, Phil Foster, Mike McDade, Patsy Potts, Pam Tucker, and Barry Shoaf. We sincerely hope that our students and other friends will continue to patronize these places of business.

We truly appreciate the never-tiring work of Mrs. Lucile Myers as she supervised our book, getting it ready for publication; and we are indebted greatly to Mrs. Joyce Hines, who managed the finances.

Students, we tried to include as many of you in this book as possible. We hope that you will cherish the memories it holds of 1975.
